ABSTRACT

From June 2009 to May 2010, I produced and hosted a weekly, two-hour radio show on the Texas State University-San Marcos radio station, 89.9 KTSW-FM. The program was called In Your Dreams, and it featured essential and upcoming releases from artists creating ambient, psychedelic and experimental music. Through the radio show, I learned a lot about music and a lot about myself. I expanded my mind to music and ideas unknown to me at the time, and I had the opportunity to share those discoveries with my listeners.

The In Your Dreams Collection is an audio/visual scrapbook, archiving the radio program from beginning to end. Materials in the collection include: original program proposals, weekly playlists, program critiques, promotional graphics and CDs containing audio from promotional announcements and legal IDs produced for the show, broadcast excerpts, and the entire May 2, 2010 broadcast, entitled In My Dreams: A Journey Through The Sounds and Words of My Friends and Family.

So sit back, relax, and enjoy the trip. It's the In Your Dreams Collection at Texas State University.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In Your Dreams and this thesis would not have been possible without the time, patience, encouragement, support, talent and knowledge of:

Dan Schumacher – Thanks for the great supervision and advice.

Heather Galloway – Thanks for the creative freedom.

Everyone at KTSW – You all rock!

Everyone at The Wittliff Collections – Thanks for being so awesome.

Mom and Dad – I wouldn't be here without you!

Valerie – Thanks for always listening and being there for me.

All of the Artists – Thanks for creating such beautiful and moving music.

All of the Record Labels and Music Blogs – Thanks for sharing the music.

And...

Everyone Who Listened – Thanks for tuning in.

INTRODUCTION

You are about to delve deep into the world of In Your Dreams. But first, I feel the need to explain a few things, such as why I decided to create In Your Dreams in the first place, why I've now created an archive of the program, and how I went about doing so.

I can trace the first thoughts and initial ideas for In Your Dreams to a few, somewhat specific moments in my life. What better way to explain these moments than with a Top 5 List, a la John Cusack from the 2000 record store romantic comedy, High Fidelity. Yes, I do aspire to one day run an independent record store of my very own. High hopes, right? So here they are, my top five inspirational moments for creating In Your Dreams (in chronological order):

- 1.) Sometime during the haze between junior high and high school, my parents bought me a brand new CD player/alarm-clock. Now, this was no ordinary CD player/alarm-clock. With this magical device I could play a CD before bed, and when the CD ended, the unit would turn itself off. Plus, after programming an alarm, the crazy machine could turn itself on in the morning and wake me up with that very same CD. I know this may not sound that amazing to most people, but at the time, I thought it was quite awesome. This was the point in my life that I became addicted to listening to music while falling asleep. To this day, I'll lay restless in bed for hours upon hours if I don't have some sort of music playing softly near my head.

2.) My freshmen year at Texas State, I was one of the few, proud Sound Recording Technology majors. On at least two special occasions, we spent our Friday class listening to classic albums, specially mixed in 5.1 surround sound, on an amazing set of speakers in the C-Room at the Fire Station Studios. I specifically recall jamming out to Pink Floyd's The Dark Side of the Moon and The Flaming Lips' Yoshimi Battles The Pink Robots. To say the least, I was blown away. Yes, I had heard psychedelic rock before, but I hadn't ever listened to it so intently and through such an amazing sound system. From those classes on, psychedelic music would engulf my listening ears and lead me to search and scavenge for that next fix. Once again, I was addicted.

3.) Late into the spring semester of my sophomore year at TSU, I was required to create an audio collage as a class project for my favorite honors course, Philosophical Exploration in Film, with Dr. Audrey McKinney. The goal of the project was to elicit a variety of emotional responses in the listener. I took this project rather seriously and worked my hardest to create an audio collage that not only produced varying emotions, but also told the condensed tale of a failed romance, from first attractions all the way to closure after the break-up. To say the least, I now had a taste for musical mixes.

4.) One short summer and a few months later, I was introduced to the beautiful, dreamy impressionism of the 19th-century French composer Claude

Debussy. While I had unknowingly heard his tunes in movies like Ocean's Eleven, it was through the Survey of Music Literature class, taught by Dr. Joey Martin, that I discovered how truly captivating Debussy's music can be. Upon my first listen to "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun," I fell deeply in love with the chords, textures, harmonies, melodies, and rhythms that Debussy employed to tell his dreamy musical tales. The flute and the harp became two of my favorite instruments, which, as a drummer, came as quite a surprise. By the end of the semester, I had so loudly pronounced my newfound love for Debussy that, on Christmas morning, Debussy: Greatest Hits was among the presents I found under our family's tree.

5.) The final reason, which is probably the most important factor in why I decided to propose my own specialty show, was the Spring 2009 KTSW Specialty Show Symposium. I didn't go into the symposium thinking I would end up creating my own show. Sure, the basic idea had presented itself before then, but it was never more than, "Man, it'd be cool if KTSW played all my favorite bands!" I went to the Symposium because I had heard there would be free pizza and soda, and since I was regular DJ at the time, attending a meeting that could only benefit me sounded like a great idea. I ended up leaving that meeting with more than just a stomach full of pepperoni and Sprite. I walked away feeling thoroughly convinced that I could create my own specialty show for KTSW. And, based on all the other moments from this list, that's what I did.

The idea for creating an archive of In Your Dreams came from my work for the Wittliff Collections at Texas State. As a student worker in a department of the library focused on archives and special collections, I have become very intrigued by the notion of collecting the works of interesting people. I've become so intrigued, in fact, that I'm now looking at eventually getting my Master's degree in Library and Information Science. I believe working as an archivist or librarian would be an extremely rewarding job. To serve as the collector, organizer, and protector of important works of literature, music, and film would be an amazing career. Better yet, an amazing purpose in life. I'll work until the end of my days to create the art I believe in, but if I can help preserve the work of others along the way, so that they may be remembered for generations to come, then I can be satisfied with my life.

But anyways, there are a few reasons behind creating the archive of In Your Dreams. I've spent close to a year on this project and I'd honestly like to have something to show for it other than a paragraph on my resume and a pile of CDs. One day I'll probably have kids, and eventually I'll want to show them what I did during college. Also, I would really like to continue In Your Dreams in some fashion later on in the future. Whether it's through internet radio, podcasting, broadcast radio or some other means, it'll be helpful to have a detailed archive of the music and materials that were a part of the show. Along with doing this for me, I feel like creating an archive of the show will provide an example for those interested in creating radio programs of their own. It can serve as an introductory guide to ambient, psychedelic and experimental music, and it can also give a good idea of just some of the elements and materials one must produce for this kind of program.

The process for creating the In Your Dreams Collection was a long and tedious one. To begin with, I gathered all of the outside materials related to the show. This included the original program proposals, audio files of promotional elements and Legal IDs, and promotional graphics. Next, I downloaded every hour-long audio file containing In Your Dreams' broadcasts from the KTSW Airchecks portal. Unfortunately, at the time that I started the archiving process, the airchecks from before July 2009 had been removed from the system. This means I am missing audio from the first three In Your Dreams. After downloading the airchecks, I used Apple's Garageband audio software to edit the audio files. I removed everything but my live announcing and the legal IDs. This means each track of broadcast excerpts will run about 15 to 20 minutes and include eight sections:

1. 10:00 Legal ID
2. 10:10 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Live Copy
3. 10:30 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Weather
4. 10:50 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Live Copy
5. 11:00 Legal ID
6. 11:10 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Live Copy
7. 11:30 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Weather
8. 11:50 Break for Back/Fore Announcing, Show Info, Live Copy

For the special May 2, 2010 broadcast, In My Dreams: A Journey Through The Sounds and Words of My Friends and Family, I downloaded the airchecks and replaced the music, interviews and legal IDs with the original, higher-quality mp3 audio files.

Whatever reasons one has for reading this thesis and investigating this archive are fine with me. I just hope it's somewhat enjoyable to read and peruse. I had a lot of fun working on In Your Dreams, and I hope you have a lot of fun learning all about it.

Subject: First Critique For Summer

Hey Tim your show succccckkkkssss play some hardcore!

But in all seriousness your show is really good and sounds very professional Make sure to intro your show with a legal ID and in your legal ID dont say anything you played, save that for your break,

Make use of the chatroom, and keep an eye on your levels cause the new board is a little different.

But yeah keep up the great work and keep the change ya filthy animal

IN YOUR DREAMS- TIM L.

Smooth intro, I like how you have a theme within your show. Great pronunciation of artists/titles; you have great insight to your set-list and you seem passionate about your show.
